

Letter of Introduction

Community Care Resources, Inc.

Community Care Resources was founded in April of 1989 by Dan Simon. Driven by his passion for serving the public, he recognized a unique need in the foster care community to heal foster children who display a range of emotional and behavioral disorders. As a licensed treatment foster care agency, CCR provides comprehensive community-based living and mental health services to children, adolescents and families in Wisconsin. The purpose of treatment is to provide a stable and normalizing family environment as a basis for children and adolescents to receive appropriate mental health, medical and educational services to become more adaptive and emotionally healthy. The mission of the agency is to successfully integrate youth into permanent home situations in which they can become productive members of society.

While our goal is to successfully integrate children and adolescents into permanent home situations, we understand that this would not be possible without our network of foster parents. Therefore, we are committed to finding parents we believe will provide a nurturing, patient, and stable environment. All of our potential foster parents are subject to extensive screening, licensing, and training. We provide an extended support system to foster parents to help them deal with the many challenges that come with transitioning foster children into their homes.

In an effort to carry out Dan Simon's vision to heal foster children in need, we implement a treatment-focused foster care program in which we provide therapeutic mental health services for the area's most vulnerable youth. This profound focus has made, and will continue to make, a significant difference for hundreds of Wisconsin foster children as it provides much needed hope for a bright and healthy future.
